“ With sincere sympathy to Olga and the entire Wilmot/Heath/Melnek family on the loss of Manley,a husband, father, father in law, brother, brother in law and grandfather. He was out family's longtime backyard neighbor (in suburban Philadelphia) and my father's best friend. They had breakfast together every weekend and talked daily(and argued) about everything from life to finances to politics and gardening(each thinking they were the expert) But at the end of each day they celebrated their differences with a stiff drink . He was also my friend and financial mentor with his repeated sage advice:spend less than you earn, save more than you spend.I ,along with many others will sorely miss him.

To Dear Olga and Family, our heartfelt sympathy. We had the pleasure of knowing Manley- a kind, smart, analytical, no nonsense soul who had such strong family values. He so loved his family and was such a proud Grandpa who spoke so proudly of his Grandchildren. With a wink of his Azure blue eyes- like he had a secret to impart- he would freely share his wisdom and knowledge and one of the best pieces of advice he freely gave to me was to"fund the index". Common sense came easy for him. He was a man with empathy and integrity and leaves a legacy of values.
God speed, Manley, rest in peace
Much love and Light

Wilmot family sorry for your loss. I worked with Manley in PHL at Northwest Airlines and enjoyed every minute. He was hard working, and in his own way pretty funny. Great memories and will be missed.
