“ Aunt Nomie called my dad "briar" I suppose because being 10 years younger, she was at first unable to say "brother". She wasn't one to "keep in touch" and yet when you saw her, it was as if we had been together the week before. I remember my parents getting a "letter" from her once that said "In midst of pink eye" Love, Naomi - that was it. One of my fondest memories of my teen years is a summer when I spent a week or so in Monroeton. I remember eating corn on the cob on the screened-in porch. Everyone always said I resembled her enough to be her daughter - I guess that is one reason why she was always special to me. With love to all, Karen
