“ My mom was always a lover. She loved everyone. She didnt care who you were She would talk to you. She always shared way to much information lol but, if you loved her you already knew she would. She was rarely a negative person. She loved her grandkids whole heartedly. Along with her kids. They could never do wrong in her eyes. She was always forgiving. To each and everyone person that she held dear, just know that she loved you with more force than anything. She held everyone close. She valued every single one of you. So, say a little prayer for her tonight as she is probably exhausted from all the people she has got to see behind those beautiful gates. I know she is happy and she is in no pain. I know that she is in a better place. Even if I can't come to terms with it yet myself. I love you mom. I am so lost without you.
