“ I had the distinct privilege of being a student of Mr. Inman's in 1984. Without a doubt, he was one of the finest educators I have ever had the pleasure of having throughout my entire high school and college experiences. He was a brilliant man who was blessed with the skill of being able to impart his vast knowledge in a clear and challenging way. He expected excellence from his students, and had the rare ability to know each student well enough to challenge them at the level that was appropriate for them. He inspired me to seek a degree in Psychology, and what I learned in his class was a valuable start for me. Most of all, he treated all his students with respect, regardless of their background, which is a rarity sorely lacking in many high school educators. Mr. Inman was truly a gentleman and a scholar, and he will forever hold a special place in my heart. My deepest sympathy goes out to his family. The world has lost a truly wonderful man!

“ Bill was one of the finest gentlemen I have ever known. I am proud to have been his colleague and friend while I was at Athens. Education needs more teachers like Bill. I always looked forward to his wry sense of humor. He was a pleasure to be around. My condolences to the Inman family on your loss.

“ I can think of no Athens faculty member who was held in higher esteem than Bill Inman. He was a gentleman of the first order and one whose teaching skills had a profound effect on his students and whose personal conduct improved that of his fellow faculty members. It was a privilege to have taught along side Bill.

“ Mr. Inman was one of the finest teachers we were privileged to have in the Athens Area School District. Our senior POD class was invaluable in preparing us to become adults in the American society. Mr. Inman was a gentleman and a scholar who used his mind and heart for the benefit of others. My sympathy and thanks to his family.

“ Bill Inman was one of the most brilliant and able men this valley has ever produced. He was a consummate professional who loved teaching and mentoring his students. The teaching profession has lost one of its greats, and, in particular, the Athens Area School District has seen yet another of its icons pass into history. We sincerely hope that the students Bill taught and the faculty members, past and present, of the high school will cherish the memory of this wonderful man.

May God bless his loving family, for they have lost a guiding light, as have we all.

“ Mr. Inman's class of POD was always interesting, enjoyable, but mostly educational, opening the doors for thought-provoking discussion which paved our way to a more enlightening education fostering stronger citizenship among us all. I recall a gentle man who could laugh and share his own life experiences and, in the process, accomplish the teaching of his lesson plan.

“ My heart goes out to the entire Inman family on your loss; Bill was my favorite teacher EVER. He encouraged my love of reading and particularly reading about current and world affairs, and taught us all the art of civil discourse when discussing complicated problems. Where our sports coaches pushed us to see past our perceived athletic limitations, he did the same and more for our intellects. I remember profusely thanking him for his profound influence on me at our 20th reunion; I was looking forward to doing the same at our upcoming 40th. Thank you all, especially Mrs. Inman, for sharing him with us all for so many years; he was a true gentleman in every sense of the word.

Sincerely yours,

“ My senior year Mr. Inman taught Problems of Democracy. We had to write a research paper which at the time seemed overwhelming. He taught us how to take notes in class. I have used his basic system throughout my life. He taught us how to write. He encouraged debate without ever expressing his own opinion. The skills I learned that year have served me well throughout my life. God bless you all.
